Short Description
In 2010, author DJ Geribo's Pomeranian, Kameko, was diagnosed with IMHA, a life-threatening auto-immune illness.

Description
To help DJ get through the emotional roller-coaster ride that she and her husband, Jim, experienced with their little dog, she documented the entire ordeal in detail. You can read about the difficult and often slow progress Kameko made from the initial visit to their veterinarian, the anxious time spent visiting their pet in the emergency hospital, dealing with the daily plethora of medications they had to administer, and the time spent waiting, hoping, and finally realizing Kameko's ultimate return to the healthy, active little dog she had always been.

If your pet has received a diagnosis of IMHA, there is hope and DJ's wish is that this book will help you with your pet's own personal journey to recovery.
